PLEASE CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING:

A dog can live for a long time – 10, 15, even 20 years.

We try to place dogs in "forever" homes.

We see dogs surrendered for various reasons.

Often the adopters were not prepared to cover the cost of vetting or training required for their new pet.

Older dogs are harder to rehome than puppies, placing an extra burden on rescuers.

During your dog's life, which of the following would be a reasonable situation to cause you to give up your dog? There are no right or wrong answers.

We look at the age, breed characteristics and habits, as well as the commitment the adopter is able and willing to place on their adopted dog.

We try to match the dog's temperament and potential needs to the adopter's ability to provide for the dog.
